

Is Your Company TRULY Different?

USP Worksheet

The two skills needed to leverage the power of a Unique Selling Proposition for your company are:

1. You need to be able to identify your USP.
2. You need to be able to express your USP in your sales and marketing efforts.

1. Identify your value proposition (USP)

Characteristics of an effective Unique Selling Proposition:

Your company's value proposition is the primary reason why a prospect should buy from you.

- This requires you to differentiate your offer from competitors.
- You may match your competitors on every dimension of value except one.
- In at least one element of value you need to excel.
- In this way you become the best choice for your ideal customer.
- There is a difference between the value proposition for your company and for your product. You must address both.

Use a 1-5 scale to rate the quality and uniqueness of your value proposition:

1. Limited value to a small market. Extensive competition and/or few barriers to entry.
2. Substantial value to a medium-sized market. Limited competition and/or significant barriers to entry.
3. Product or service with strong product differentiation, but little competitive protection.
4. Unique product or service that is highly valuable to a large market, and strong competitive protection and/or extensive barriers to entry. This may take the form of a registered patent or limited access to product components.
5. Unique product or service that is highly valuable to a large market, and exclusive or near-exclusive control of essential product components. May include a registered patent.

Note: If your value proposition does not rank as a 3 or better using the above criteria, you should take a critical look at your core business.

Value Proposition Evaluation Matrix:

Desire to Acquire Your Product

- 0 – Little or no interest
- 1 – Possible interest
- 2 – High interest

Exclusivity

- 0 – Anywhere Else
- 1 – Somewhere Else
- 2 – Nowhere Else

		Desire to Acquire
		Rank	0	1
Exclusivity	0
	1
	2

Use this simple system to approximate the potential appeal of your company's USP:

1. Rank the ideal customer's desire level for your company's USP.
2. Rank the exclusivity of your USP.
3. Multiply the two numbers.
4. If the total is less than 2, rethink your USP.

2. Express your value proposition (USP)

Principles for expressing a value proposition effectively:

1. Ask yourself: "Why should my ideal prospect (the group you intend to serve) buy from me instead of a competitor?"
2. Compare your answer with the claims of your main competitors.
3. If your competitors can claim the same, start over.
4. Refine your value proposition (USP) until you can articulate it in a single, instantly credible sentence.
5. If you had just 10 words with which to describe why people should buy from your company instead of someone else, what would you communicate?

Write out your Unique Selling Proposition:
